26 "europe is there a threat?" discussion program btwn prof vladimir sobakin, lev semeyko and dr daniel proektor, and nikolay borin as moderator. british listener feels that britain and other european countries should have been invited to take part in geneva talks. semeyko agrees that it is rather one sided with usa representing europe, but stresses that britain and other countries did not want to take part as they say their nuclear weapons have nothing to do with talks, insofar that they have nothing to do with nato. european countries have crucial part to play if they really want to see lower level of nuclear confrontation in europe. britain and other countries are taking big risk when they entrust their future to president reagan. a swedish listener feels that usa is exercising pressure on junior partners in nato. sobakin agrees with this and proektor outlines some examples such as deployment of nuclear weapons in europe against natl interests of country and econ sanctions applied in supplying parts for gas pipeline. 97 igor sheftunov on 'ali khamene'i sermon on last friday who had said that in soviet union popular representation does not exist. as world mass media and scholars are aware, soviet union is only country with popular councils which are elected by people and maintain their independence. mr khamene'i may not be aware or he tries to be ignorant of fact. administration in soviet union is always directed by popular councils which are representatives of mass people. mr khamene'i in his friday sermon has concealed the facts and has insulted the socialist countries. islamic rule in iran by attacking and arrest of tudeh party members reveals facts more on this subject in next friday program and disclose more facts about iranian tendencies.
